

Snapshots of a Discipline in Transition:
An Interview with Todd Presner
by Laura Mandell

Todd Presner is Professor of Germanic and Comparative Literatures at UCLA, and Chair of the Digital Humanities Program launched at UCLA this year (2011). In these podcasts, he speaks with Laura Mandell, Professor of English at Miami University.

Presner gives us insight into where the national literary and cultural studies disciplines are going, and also into how a new understanding of the graphical both fits into and foments this this transition. Mandell and Presner range widely, mentioning projects, terms, and literature in the field of digital humanities for which we provide more information--simply follow the links on the podcasting page as you listen.
